QUESTION 2

Dr Bambi had an appointment with Dr. SK at the TechUni, Kuala Lumpur. While waiting for Dr. SK, Dr Bambi remembered that he had to email a document (that he was carrying in a floppy) to his office. As he looked around, he realized that there was a computer at the reception desk, which was switched on. However, the receptionist was nowhere to be seen. Dr Bambi immediately inserted the floppy disk containing the document into the floppy drive of the computer at the reception desk. Just then, the receptionist entered and saw Dr Bambi at the computer. She immediately called the security guards and intimated the manager about the incident. The manager wants to take legal action against Dr Bambi for unauthorized access. Advise the manager.

(Total: 25 marks)

- (b) Differentiate between civil and criminal laws in terms of their functions in protecting Internet-based businesses.

(10 marks)

(Total: 25 marks)

QUESTION 4

A young lady named Tracey Lulu found her profile in an online community named "TheWorldcom" on its website TheWorldcom.net. Her surprise turned to horror when she realized that the profile painted her as a person of dubious character whose only interest was money. The profile also commented of her achievements which included defrauding a bank of RM50,000 and getting away with it. Tracey immediately informed "TheWorldcom" of the posting and requested them to remove it. The posting was removed the next day but reappeared a week later. It was again removed but reappeared two days later. Deeply hurt, Tracey filed a suit for defamation against "TheWorldcom". With reference to jurisprudence of defamation cases, examine the liability of "TheWorldcom".
